SALESMANSHIP IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS.

Vocational training in the public schools has thus far been largely confined to the industries and the fact seems to have been overlooked that many young people enter commercial, as well as industrial life, and without any preparation, because the schools fail to provide it.

Experience demonstrates the fact that the first year of apprenticeship in the store is usually a loss to the employer, because of inexperience and lack of knowledge. The average business man has but little patience in educating boys and girls, and so efforts are now being made to have the public schools do the preliminary work.

The National Retail Dry Goods association has recently issued a bulletin on vocational training which contains many good suggestions. It says, among other things: "Many of our best and most representative retail establishments have responded with great appreciation and public spirit to the demands made upon them for welfare work and the education of their employees. Can they not, however, serve the public even more efficiently by insisting that the public perform its plain duty of training its own children in the vocation, instead of asking a few concerns to add to their business of retailing, the profession of education?"

"The experience of some of the big concerns seems to indicate clearly that the employer gets a much lower return, in proportion, from the $4.00 a week salesgirl than from the $15.00 or $17.00 a week salesgirl. To the old story that cheap help is costly. The inefficiency of salespeople can usually be traced directly to lack of ambition and energy, and sometimes to physical weakness.

mence in February. Cleveland, Philadelphia, Detroit and other cities are contemplating similar courses. The great universities, led by Wisconsin, and including Pennsylvania, Michigan, Harvard and New York, not to be outdone by public schools, have taken up and progressed rapidly with systematized instruction in business efficiency. The entire country is waking to realize the vast need of such training as will send competent wage earners from the schoolroom into the commercial world. There is today sufficient proof that vocational training will protect and advance not only our boys and girls, but their employers as well. Department store men will reap inestimable benefits from such a reform. Surely here is a great opportunity to mark an epoch in the progress of education and solve a national problem!"

Interest has been aroused in commercial education because of the popular sentiment demanding a minimum wage scale. Reform writers and speakers have vigorously proclaimed that no girl could maintain her self-respect on a wage of less than eight dollars per week, and this is double what she can earn behind a sales counter, as a beginner.

The business men feel that this law is to become general, that the public schools are under obligation to furnish the kind of knowledge which their business demands. The strongest argument, however, is from the student side, for success and destiny often hang in the balance.

Salesmanship, as a feature of education, is not an experiment. Boston has supported, by private philanthropy, a school of the kind since 1905, under the management of its founder, Mrs. Lucinda W. Prince.

The students of the school are saleswomen employed by the department stores. They receive full wages while attending the school, and their day's work is divided about equally between school and store. From 8:30 until 11:30 a. m. they are at school, from 12:30 to 3:30 p. m. (or closing time) they are at their places in the stores.

Those unfamiliar with the manner in which the purchase of the school is carried out may wonder how the stores can afford to pay full wages to half-time workers.

The store superintendents and floor managers testify (from actual records of sale) that those girls who are attending the school sell more in their afternoons at the store than their co-workers do in the entire day. An interesting side-light was thrown on this question of the practical esteem in which the instruction is held by the director's statement that some years ago in the early days of enlisting the cooperation of the store managers they sent their lowest paid girls whom they felt could be more easily spared. Now they send their best and most promising employees that they may reap full benefit of the specialized training.

Last winter one hundred and ninety-five graduates of the school of salesmanship were interviewed with the purpose of learning whether the training had paid in terms of cash increasing wages. One hundred and forty-five of the number have received an increase within the year. Thirty-four of these had been advanced $2.00 a week; eighteen had advanced $3.00 a week; six had advanced $4.00 a week; two had advanced $5.00 a week; one had advanced $6.00 a week; one had advanced $14.00 a week.

If any line of education can show more practical results, it is yet to be heard from. Another feature closely allied with salesmanship is publicity. The art of advertising is well worth studying.

SIDETRACKING RUMORS.

There has been general comment all over the United States relative to the action of the firm of J. P. Morgan and company of New York, withdrawing from the directorships of various corporations in which they were interested. In this connection it is most interesting to note what the Wall Street Journal has to say on the subject. This paper has kept in close touch with the situation and predicted something of this kind last December. It says in a recent editorial:

"Attempts to reach hard and fast conclusions regarding the import of the action taken by members of the J. P. Morgan and company last week, and the results likely to flow therefrom, make little progress. The Morgan partners have not abandoned all their important directorships, and are probably themselves uncertain how far they should carry the process, which is developing itself, as The Wall Street Journal predicted on December 19 last, when it said: 'Reforms in the direction of leaving large corporations, like railroads, with an absolutely free hand in the purchase of supplies or the distribution of patronage will probably come one at a time. The same is true about such changes in directorates as will leave corporations free to select their own fiscal agents.'"

"Not the least important reason why those responsible for it are carrying this separation of interests forward slowly is their uncertainty as to what is to take the place of a condition born of the necessities of twenty years ago, but now outliving its best usefulness. If the succession to retiring directors were open to all others than private or institutional bankers the problem of choosing qualified directors without 'interlocking', undoubtedly real as far as they go, have never been defined and new directors chosen today may be objectionable tomorrow.

"An attempt to reach such a definition is evidently embodied in the bill of Representative Barkley of Kentucky, now pending in congress. It provides simply that no person may become or remain a director in more than one corporation engaged in interstate commerce, or serve as officer or director in more than one banking association or organization, or serve as officer or director in any banking association or organization, or as officer or director in any other association or organization."

pany, operating the former's natural extension to Chicago. Directors of the subsidiaries of a score of railroads would perform but merely employees of the parent company, dummy directors, and the law would in this respect have accomplished only mischief, if anything at all.

"Further, such a law would prevent any railroad from enjoying the services, as director, of a director of a large mercantile or manufacturing corporation, although presumably any individual in the same business by himself could act as a railroad director. Railroads now losing bankers from their boards would be debarred from filling the vacant places with able and successful men of affairs in close touch with the transportation needs of business.

"Finally, if the proposed law excepts banking partnerships from its prohibitions, as it appears to, it would fail to accomplish what the voluntary action of the Morgan firm has already accomplished to a considerable degree, in so far as interstate transportation is concerned. Such a measure needs careful re-drafting if it is not to invite resort to the unwholesome dummy directorship and is at the same time to accomplish any good. It furnishes another striking example of the opportunities that financiers have of sidetracking false reforms by initiating real ones."

Mayor Mitchell of New York has been presented with a silver loving cup by 900 of his fellow citizens. He will be in luck, if, at the expiration of his term, he is not presented with an old garbage can.

In spite of the inference to be obtained from the news columns, it is probable that occasionally a man who does not hold a state contract is sent to the penitentiary in New York.

Considering the number of Mexicans who are coming over the border, why speculate any further as to why they prefer to fight their battles near the American boundary line?

Undoubtedly Hon. James Bryce will wear his new title of nobility in a dignified manner. Even in this country nobody ever dared to call him Jim.

Congressman Mann has not viewed with alarm for a week. Can it be possible he is on the trail of something he can point to with pride?

In spite of that run on the Bank of Mexico, there is nothing as yet to prove that it was worth making a run on.

"LOVE'S SUNSET"

The Story

Unlike Harold Heath, Wilton Towne does not care for women. He is interested in his art and devotes all of his time to improving his talent. Heath becomes fascinated by a pretty cabaret dancer at a fashionable restaurant and induces her to give up dancing to make her home with him. He lavishes wealth and luxury upon her for a while then tires of her and goes away to Europe. She is forced to go out and earn her living. She finally becomes a dancer at a vulgar dance hall where she is obliged to put up with all the vulgarity of such a place. One day she gives up in despair and is helped by a Salvation Army Rescue woman who is instrumental in getting her a position as nurse maid with a well-to-do family where there are three little children. While employed there she meets William Towne, the artist, who is a great friend of the family. He eventually falls in love with her and asks her to marry him.

Nita knows that she should tell Towne of the life she has led but fearing to turn him against her and loving him dearly, she becomes his wife without letting him know of the past years. She is happy and contented and her love for Towne is only equalled by his love for her. She is blessed with a little boy, who brings more happiness into their home.

Two years later Heath returns from Europe and calls on Towne. Nita is terror stricken when she meets him and reveals her past life to her husband who demands to know what has aroused her fear. He then turns her out of his house telling her that its doors are closed to her forever. As she wanders away through the country she loses her mind. Towne is grief stricken and longs for his wife's return. She eventually strays back onto the villa grounds, not knowing where she is, and dies in the arms of her husband without knowing that she has forgiven her.

"Love's Sunset" is a deep and interesting drama of modern times. It is filled with sweetest pathos and strong human interest. It was selected for these qualities by the management of the Lyric and Majestic theatres where it will be shown Sunday.

When he's laid upon the shelf.

According to Uncle Abner. There ain't no feller who knows more about the expense of running an automobile than the feller who never owned one.

About the only difference discernible between a real diamond and an imitation is the price. Little things often mean much in this world. There is sometimes a tremendous amount of responsibility on a slender button.

A young Hickeyville husband is in very bad with his wife just at present. She proudly placed her first biscuit before him on a plate at dinner one evening. He apprehensively slipped it into his pocket. Later he took it to a jeweler, had his initials engraved upon it and began wearing it for a watch charm. He could make money by having her bake them by the dozen and selling them for doorknobs.

Nobody kin look more innocent than the feller who hasn't paid his fare. Between cookin' the meal and washin' the dishes, the average woman sort of loses her appetite.

Hank Purdy traded some land he had in the river bottom here to Deacon Stubbs for a bucksaw and a squirrel rifle. The original deal was for forty acres of land, but Hank got a good deal the best of the bargain for the deacon is some near-sighted and can't read, and when Hank made out the deed he made it for eighty acres instead of forty, and all the deacon will have to do from now on is to try to read it.

Ammy Hicks, who has a great head for figures, has got it doped out that every day in this country 15,000 acres of timber is whittled up in sawpiles and sawdust. Ammy has also figured it out that if all the automobile tires in this world were hooked together they would reach nine times around the earth and leave room for a bow knot. Ammy's wife takes in washin'.

"Uncle Tom's Cabin"

Synopsis

Uncle Tom and Eliza's child are sold to Haley, a slave trader. When Eliza learns that her son is to be taken from her, she steals the boy and runs away. Her flight is discovered. The slave crosses the ice-filled river and joins her husband, George Harris, who is also a runaway slave. The two foil their pursuers and get away.

Uncle Tom is placed aboard a steamboat to be taken down the river. Later, he saves the life of little Eva who has fallen overboard. St. Clare, her father, purchases Uncle Tom in gratitude for the slave's heroism. Tom and Eva become firm friends. St. Clare, as a joke, presents Aunt Ophelia, his New England relative, with Topsy, a mischievous imp.

Always a delicate child, Eva fades away and dies. Shortly afterward, St. Clare is killed while attempting to stop a saloon brawl. His estate is sold and Uncle Tom is purchased by Simon Legree.

One of the field hands turns in a cotton basket that is short weight. Uncle Tom is ordered to flog the woman. Uncle Tom's refusal. Legree orders Uncle Tom to flog Legree's orders. Legree orders Legree's orders. Legree orders Legree's orders.

Legree believes that Uncle Tom knows their hiding place. He orders the old slave to reveal the whereabouts of the two women. When Tom pleads ignorance, Legree has him flogged to death. Young Shelby, the son of Uncle Tom's former master, comes upon the scene just as the faithful old slave dies. The boy turns furiously upon Legree and knocks the man down.

Legree drowns the humiliation of the blow in drink and dies in delirium shortly afterward. Shelby reverently takes Uncle Tom's body back to the old plantation, where it is laid away near the old slave's cabin.

He thought that he could get rich And never advertise.

And when he took his ad out His custom grew so thin, He hastened to the sanctum And put it in again.

To a Departing Maid. "Oh say not so! Oh say not so! Would not a weary heart? Do not regard us as your foe and say that we must part. Oh, modify that angry look while we express regret. You are a most accomplished cook, and cooks are hard to get. Oh speak not thus! Oh, speak not thus! Pray set that suitcase down! If you'll consent to cook for us, no one shall chide nor frown. No fault we'll find with you, dear cook, not matter what you do, for as a cook you are a hit, and cooks are very few.

He Paid. Her lips he kissed, And cried: "Oh, bliss!" The maiden hissed: "You'll pay for this!" She spoke the truth, His fatal frolic Laid low the youth With painter's colic.

Such transactions by law are secret, but Roth said he fell in the 1 per cent class between $4,000, he being married, and $20,000.

CHANGES HIS PLEA; GETS A HEAVY FINE

H. Hartman of St. Paul Hotel at Milton Junction Admits Selling Liquor Without a License.

Following the example of Mr. Haviland, proprietor of the Morgan House, Milton Junction, H. Hartman, who is landlord at the St. Paul Hotel, appeared in municipal court this morning asking to be allowed to change his plea from not guilty to guilty, the offense being the sale of intoxicating liquors without a license.

Hartman also told the story of his operations, admitting that he has sold off and for a number of months. He said he had never kept a large stock on hand and that the sale was confined for the most part to guests at the hotel. Judge Maxfield imposed a fine of $100 and costs which amounted to $177.

The places run by Haviland and Hartman were raided by Sheriff Whipple and a corps of deputies on Christmas Eve and abundant evidence was found to show that both were dealing illegally in intoxicating liquors. The place of Charles Lumm was also raided and his trial is scheduled for tomorrow in Judge Maxfield's court. He has retained Attorney John K. Fisher and evidently intends to fight the case.

Two were arraigned this morning on the charge of drunkenness. Pat Goodman was fined $25 or thirty days and Ed Duval $15 or fifteen days. Both are to be taken to the jail and will be supplied with jobs at nightfall, as the demand for labor continues brisker than can be supplied by prisoners sentenced.

BUY EIGHTEEN COWS FOR COUNTY'S HERD

Grade Holsteins Purchased Near Whitewater and Hebron to Restock County Farm.

Superintendent Barless and trustees of the county farm have purchased eighteen new milch cows from farmers and dairymen in the vicinity of Whitewater and Hebron to replenish the county farm herd, which has been badly depleted as the result of ravages from tuberculosis. Mr. Barless spent yesterday on the road with a Whitewater stock buyer and bought as many cows as will be needed for the present. All the animals were taken subject to inspection and they will be given the tuberculin test before accepted. Mr. Barless found that prices were quite high for the best grades of cows and paid from $85 to $125 apiece for the eighteen. They will be delivered to the farm within a few days.

Cyclone Cox Secured A Draw With His Opponent By Clever Work At Finish.

There were fully a hundred and fifty Jansville boxing enthusiasts who witnessed the matches held there under the auspices of the Line City Athletic club. Cyclone Cox of this city obtained a draw in his contest with Bud Corbett of Delavan by clever work at the finish, although Corbett seemed to have the better of it through other rounds. The first contest was between two little Rockford boxers, four rounds. Redmond of Milwaukee put away Allison of Sycamore in three rounds. The wind-up was a poorly matched affair, Willie Schaefer of Chicago easily outpointing Jules Hackman of Burlington. Hackman was clumsy and did not know the game.

BELOIT MAN ARRAIGNED IN LOCAL COURT FOR NOT SUPPORTING WIFE

Harry Truesdale of Beloit, was arraigned in Judge Maxfield's court this morning on the charge of not supporting his wife, Mary Truesdale, who now resides in this city. Truesdale pleaded not guilty and his case was adjourned with the understanding that he and his attorney, Mr. Rutland, attempt some satisfactory arrangements with the district attorney. Truesdale claimed that he was getting only $10 a week at present as the shops were running short hours and that he had very little money with which to provide for his wife.

ARRANGEMENTS MADE FOR ANNUAL DANCE

Knights of Columbus Plan An Elaborate Affair to be Held Soon.

Thursday night at a regular meeting of the Knights of Columbus it was decided to hold their annual grand ball sometime during the latter part of January or early in February. Arrangements have already been made by Lecturer Fred Smith to secure the services of a concert singer or a reader and tentative dates have been taken with Alexius Baas, the noted tenor of Madison, and it is hoped that arrangements can be made to allow his presence at the ball. The supper feature, which heretofore took a prominent place in this affair, will probably be eliminated as there are many who feel that the interest created by this feature is no longer sufficient to make up for the work connected therewith. The committee will be appointed within the course of this week and will secure a Sunday afternoon at the club rooms. Talks were made by District Delegate William H. Dougherty and Harry Doran of Chicago.

HANDSOME CATALOGS ARE JUST FINISHED

Printing Department of the Gazette
Has Just Finished Some Very Handsome Work.

The printing department of the Gazette has been producing some very fine work recently, and among the larger jobs turned out have been catalogs for the Wisconsin Carriage Company and the J. C. Nichols Harness Manufacturing Company.

The Nichols catalog consists of 260 pages, size 12x9, in two colors with a handsome embossed cover. The body stock of the book is of fine catalog enamel and the whole appearance is high grade. Each book weighs over two pounds and they will be sent to the customers of the Nichols Company far and wide and will act as a splendid representative of the city, Janesville. The arrangement of illustrations and subject matter was a big task for those connected with it and reflects much credit to those responsible for it.

The Wisconsin Carriage Company catalog is another nice piece of printed matter, which goes out from Janesville each year. It consists of 96 pages, size 9x12, with a double extension cover, gray in color with embossed letter design in two colors which harmonize with the cover color. The interior of the book is beautifully illustrated with ornamental marginal drawings, which typify the product of the Wisconsin Carriage Company, and this part of the book is printed in a tint color. The illustrations of the vehicles are on fine half-tones and these appear in black ink.

The whole job is a credit, not only to the Wisconsin Carriage Company, but to the people who compiled it, as well as to the printing department of the Gazette and these two large books are indicative of the splendid facilities with which the Gazette is equipped for the production of high grade printed matter.

These are but two of the many pieces of fine work which have gone through the printing department recently. A short time since a large run of color books was turned out for the Caloric Company, a splendid lot of booklets for the Janesville Machine Company, a large press run of three-color work for the Parker Pen Company, twenty thousand miniature catalogs for the Rock River Machine Company, the proceedings in booklet form of the Grand Encampment of Patriarchs, I. O. O. F. of Wisconsin, two large priests, and numerous other runs which cannot be mentioned specifically.

DEBATING TEAMS ARE SELECTED BY COACH

Professor J. T. Shaefer Balances
Tries in Preparation For Encounters On February, 13th.

Coach J. T. Shaefer of the high school debaters, has selected his trios to represent the school in the coming spring term as members of the Beloit College League. The affirmative trio will be composed of Carl Schoof, Karl Erick and George Spohn. Russell Smiley, Allen Deaton and Stanley Horwood will represent the negative team of speakers. Victor Hemming and Raymond Barnes will be the alternatives on affirmative and negative team respectively.

The date for the first end-on encounters is Friday evening, February 13th. On that night, the Janesville affirmative will debate at home, against the Freeport negative, while the local negative will meet the Madison affirmative at the latter place.

A tentative date, that of January 16th, has been set for a trial debate between the two local teams, at the high school building. The question will be thoroughly examined and the rebuttals will be arranged so as to have every possible argument met with success.

FREIGHT TRAIN STRIKES
RIG AT AVALON SUNDAY

Conductor J. Mathewson and the crew on freight train number 650 are wondering how a farmer whom they named John "Doe" in their report escaped being killed early Sunday morning when the engine struck his rig at the crossing three miles west of Avalon. The train was traveling at a high rate of speed and struck the rig full force, knocking the man and horse down the embankment. It was a miracle that the man was not killed and the crew had a hard chase to catch the horse which escaped without a scratch. After the train had been stopped the trainmen went back and found that the farmer was sitting on some ties with the heels of the buggy around his neck. He was unable to give his full name, answering the questions of the crew by saying that his rig was John's. John Doe, a Christianized John Doe for making reports.

While both the man and horse escaped injury, the buggy was smashed and parts of it stuck to the pilot of the locomotive. John Doe was taken to Avalon to sober up and the horse cared for at a farm house near the railroad crossing.

CHANGES ARE MADE IN ROUND HOUSE HOURS

Effective today, the day force at the roundhouse will complete the day's work at five o'clock, starting at seven, making nine hours. The night men work from seven at night until seven in the morning. This change applies to the laborers as the machinists quit under the old schedule. This change is declared to be the result of orders effective throughout the system for the reduction of expenses.

Official word has been received that all of the 1913 passes will be honored until January 15th, 1914.

Three switch engines have been working at the Janesville yards for the last month and the following crews are working: James and Loras on 1180, Fatter and Hummel on one division of 1350 and Webb and Kern on the night run. Callahan and O'Hara are on 1158.

Freight train number 166 went out as a double-header last night with 36 full stock cars for Chicago. Corbett was conductor and Lomoney and West were the engine crew. This freight has been double-headed or run in two sections for the past two weeks.

Conductor Engerham brought an extra from Chicago last night billed with 27 empty stock cars.

The "dog run" was ordered out for eleven o'clock last night. The crew was as follows: Brennan, conductor; Allen, engineer; Haney, fireman; and Pilling and Codman, brakemen.

brakemen on the M. P. division, are laying off.

Freight 391 was ordered out at nine o'clock with Joe Star as conductor and Bush and Dams as engineers.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT OF
"WITHIN THE LAW"

"A girl cannot be paid at the rate of $7.00 a week and dress at the rate of $12.00 without getting the extra five from somewhere," said the Rev. Dr. Charles H. Parkhurst, the eminent clergyman. "Within the Law," the gripping play which has excited more comment than any other drama of the past decade brought this as the Blackmailer in "Within the Law," which comes to the Myers Theatre for return engagement on Tuesday evening, January 13.

statement from the prominent clergyman and physician. Lovers of good acting and absorbing plays will come the return engagement of the company when it appears at Myers Theatre Tuesday, January 13.

Dr. Parkhurst's editorial was published in the New York Evening Journal and contained more than one paragraph of scathing denunciation addressed to the great employers of the department stores who underpay their shop-girls and drive them to temptation.

"Within the Law" tells the story of a New York shop girl who is unjustly accused of theft, seeks revenge after her release from prison by consorting with a gang of crooks, and preying upon society, always keeping "Within the Law."

The play which created such a sensational hit when seen here earlier in the season will again be the offering at the Myers Theatre next Tuesday with the same superb cast as here before.

NATION THREATENED WITH RACE SUICIDE

Medical Men at Conference Aim to Classify and Provide Ways to Combat Menacing Condition.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.]

Battle Creek, Mich., Jan. 9.—"In order that the existing population may be maintained or indeed that the race may survive, it will apparently be necessary to make a eugenic selection of healthy mothers and to provide that the cost of bearing and rearing children shall be equally shared by all," Dr. I. McKean Cattell, professor of philosophy at Columbia University, today startled the delegates to the opening session of the National Conference on Race Betterment, with this statement in the course of his address on the subject, "Causes of the declining Birthrate." Dr. Cattell's array of statistics in regard to the tremendous declines in the world's birthrate created a sensation. He said in part:

"The completed family of contemporary scientific man is about two, the surviving family about 1.8 and the number of surviving children for each scientific man about 1.6. Twenty-two per cent of the families of childless; only one family in seventy-five is larger than six. The same conditions obtain for college graduates. If the size of the family of college graduates should continue to decrease as it did during the nineteenth century, students graduating in 1925 would have no children. If the birth rates of England, Germany and France should continue to decrease as they have since 1880, there would be no children born a hundred years hence. In France the population is now stationary, while in some departments there are four deaths for every three births. In other nations an increase in population has been maintained through a decreasing death rate, but in England and elsewhere the death rate must increase, being now so low on account of the age-constitution of the population. It is only in Japan that the birth-rate is increasing, though it still remains high in Russia. Five dreadsnaughts built annually in England are fragile toys compared with five million children born annually in Russia."

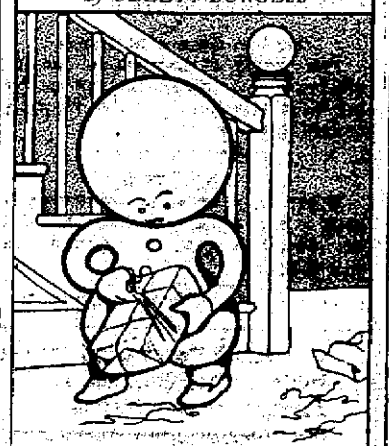

"Answers from four hundred and sixty-six scientific men giving the causes which led to the limitation in the size of their families show that one hundred and seventy-six were not voluntarily limited while two hundred and eighty-five were so limited. The cause voluntary limitation being health in one hundred and sixty-three cases, expense in ninety-eight cases, and various other causes in fifty-four cases. Childlessness was involuntary in two-thirds of the cases. In the standardized family of two, the condition is six cases out of seven."

"In over one-third of the families, the limitation was involuntary, due to inferiority and other pathological causes, but if these had not obtained, voluntary limitation would have occurred later, in nearly all or perhaps in all cases. Neither the prevalence of the voluntary limitation of the size of the family, nor the fact that the size of the family is limited directly or indirectly through fertility or ill-health in more than three-fourths of the cases can be regarded with satisfaction."

To classify menacing conditions and to provide ways for the race to withstand them, is the purpose of the National Conference on Race Betterment which convened for a five days session in the Battle Creek Sanitarium today. Physicians, settlement workers, educators, ministers and noted public officials from this country and Europe are here to formulate a working plan for the building of a perfect race of humans. But few times in the nation's history have so many eminent men and women, scientists and sociologists, gathered for a common purpose—that of bettering the conditions of their fellowmen.

Today's program included addresses by Professor Walter F. Willcox, of Cornell University, on "Differential Fecundity"; E. E. Rittenhouse, conservation commissioner of the Equitable Life Insurance Society, on "Apparent Increase in Degenerative Diseases"; and Frederick L. Hoffman, statistician of the Prudential Life Insurance Company, on "Race Progress as Measured by Chances in the Death Rate."

DRINK HOT TEA
FOR A BAD COLD

Get a small package of Hamburg Breast Tea, or as the German folks call it "Hamburger Brust Thee" at any pharmacy. Take a tablespoonful of the tea, put a cup of boiling water upon it, pour through a sieve and drink a teacup full at any time. It is the most effective way to break a cold and cure a grip, as it opens the pores, relieving congestion. Also loosens the bowels, thus breaking a cold at once. It is inexpensive and entirely vegetable, therefore harmless.

PRINCE EXPRESSES REGRET IN LEAVING

German Crown Prince Happiest When at Head of Death Hussars of Imperial Troops.

Berlin, Jan. 9.—A characteristic communication was sent by the German crown prince to the Death Hussars which he commanded at Danzig on the occasion of his transfer to Berlin to serve on the general staff. According to today's Tagliche Rundschau, always well informed on military affairs, says: "He expressed regret at his departure in deeply emotional language. The newspaper quotes him as follows: 'It is a terrible hard and lonely life, but I cannot ride at your head through life. The two happiest years of my life were spent in your ranks. Today I bury my youth.' " "If ever the king calls me back to the front, then I will think of him whose fond wish it was to live this moment of a soldier's life." The same newspaper publishes an explanation of the crown prince's recall to Berlin from Danzig which dispels the rumors that it was connected with his telegram to Colonel Von Reuter, commanding the conduct of the crown prince's duties. It says, to his unsatisfactory relations with his immediate superiors, General August von Mackensen and Major General Count von Schmettow, whom the emperor had appointed as the crown prince's military advisors, but to whom he refused to listen.

THE WEDDING GUESTS DANCED UNTIL EARLY THIS MORNING

Most Enjoyable Time at the Freeman-Blaschke Wedding Festivities.

Married at-to-thirty Thursday afternoon at St. John's church by Rev. S. W. Fuchs, Miss Louise Freeman and Mr. Otto Blaschke with the bridal party of which Miss Anna Blaschke of Chicago, sister of the groom, was maid of honor, and Herman Scheib was best man. The bride, Miss Anna Blaschke, 601 Caroline street, and enjoyed a most sumptuous wedding supper. Only the immediate friends and relatives of the contracting parties were present. Shortly before eight, the automobile of Herman Buege conveyed the bride couple to Bismarck hall where Mr. and Mrs. Albert Teubert were hosts at a wedding reception. A musical orchestra furnished musical inspiration for the hundred odd guests who danced until three this morning. The groom is a carpenter and had worked in the construction of St. John's church where he was married, and also at the Bismarck hall, where the wedding reception was held. After a short honeymoon Mr. and Mrs. Blaschke will make their home in this city.

APPEAL IS TAKEN TO TAX COMMISSION BY TOWN OF BELOIT

May Result in Entire Reapportionment of State and County Taxes in Rock County.

Petition for an appeal to the state tax commission asking for a reapportionment of real and personal property in the town of Beloit for the purpose of apportioning the state and county taxes, has been filed in the county clerk's office and a duplicate copy sent today to the office of the tax commission at Madison. The commission will set a date for a hearing which will probably be held at the court house in this city and a twenty day notice of such hearing will be given to the city, village and township supervisors so that they may appear at the hearing and present complaints or defend the present assessment of the property in their district. The proposition leaves the way open for an entirely new apportionment for Rock county and it is even hinted that the matter may go so far as to mean a re-assessment of the entire county. If E. Mosley, chairman of the town of Beloit, and A. C. Powers, town clerk, signed the petition for the hearing. In their petition they charge that the assessment of the town of Beloit is entirely inequitable. The amount is higher than the assessment of any other township in the county, while it is a recognized fact that five sections of the townships are in the city of Beloit and that the assessment of the town of Beloit is $71,000 less than Beloit. It is claimed that the value of real estate placed at $146 is $46 too high. Various records and reports are filed as supplements to the petition. The entire matter promises to open up the tax and assessment problems in Rock county and may bring about a vigorous fight before an adjustment is reached.

STATE PAYS TAXES TO NORTHERN TOWNS

Total of $15,619 Goes to Districts Located on Lands Within State Forestry Reserve.

[SPECIAL TO THE GAZETTE.] Madison, Wis., Jan. 9.—The state will pay $15,619.05 in taxes to the localities on its lands within the state forestry reserve. The assessment of the state lands within the reserve is announced by the state tax commission today in a letter to Secretary of State John S. Donald. The total value of the land within the area owned by the state is $1,249,521. Heretofore the state lands have been exempt from taxation, but at the last legislative act was passed permitting an assessment on forestry lands owned by the state in the counties of Vilas, Forest, Iron, Oneida and Price counties. The taxes must be paid by the state before Feb. 1. Following are the amounts of taxes to be paid by the state to the counties within the reserve area: Vilas, $5,705; Forest, $4,083; Iron, $1,853; Oneida, $3,565; Price, $400. Under the law the bulk of this money will go to the school districts located within the counties named. The aim of the law is to reduce the taxes within these localities, which have been excessively high because of the lands exempted because they were owned by the state. This law permitting the state to tax itself is one of the most unique tax statutes ever enacted.

GETS A LIBERAL PORTION OF TWO MILLION ESTATE

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS.] Green Bay, Jan. 9.—Mrs. Pauline W. McMain, a former resident of De Pere, is to share to the extent of $200,000 in an estate of a cousin that is valued at $2,636,410, according to information that has been received from New York City, where the will has been filed for probate, Robert C.

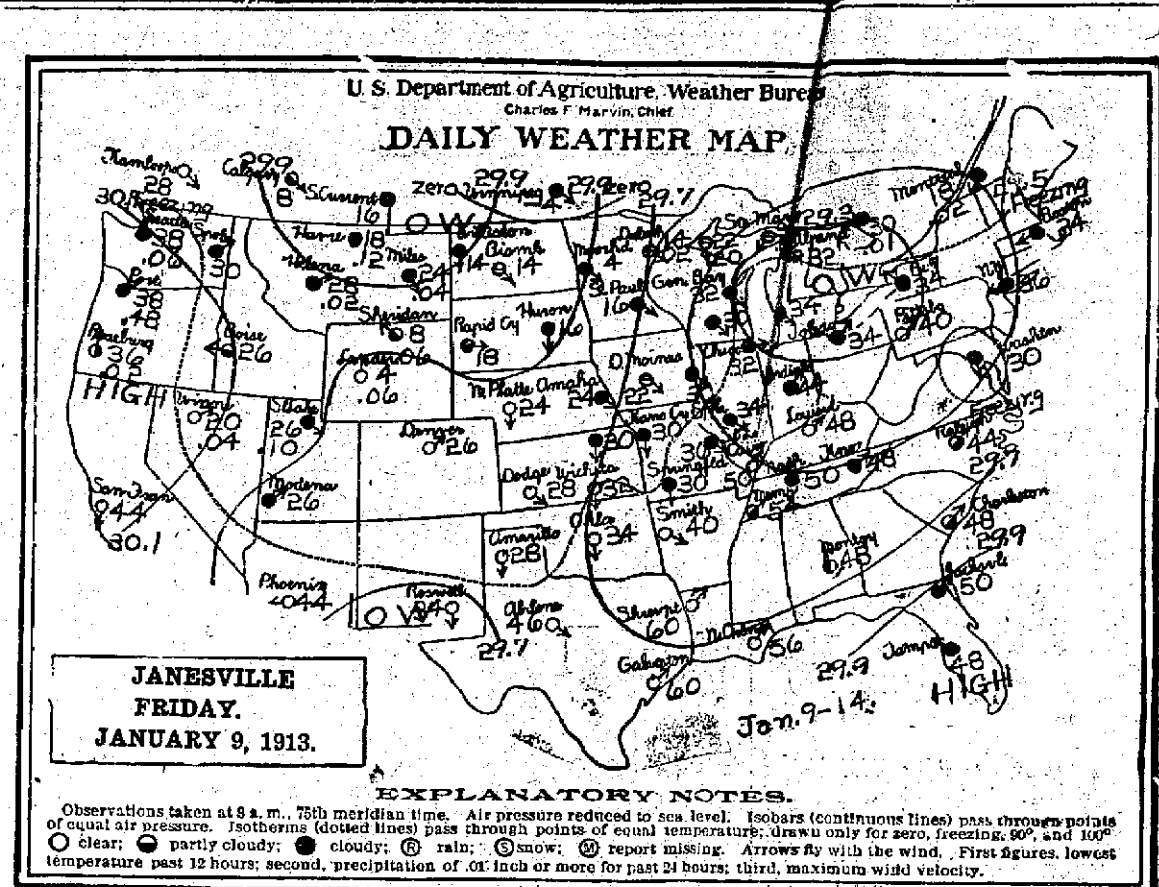

Billings, a Boston capitalist, is the maker of the will in which Mrs. McMain is to share. The Billings estate consisted of stocks, bonds, mortgages, securities, real estate and other personal effects.

EXPLAINS BENEFITS OF NATION OWNING PUBLIC SERVICES

Brochart Plans State Wide Organization and Expansion Into Government Ownership of Public Trusts.

By S. W. Brochart.

The purpose of this organization is investigation and not agitation. It will first learn the facts and then give them publicity. It believes the American people are entitled to know the truth about both sides of the great questions of public ownership of public utilities. Its scope will not be limited to the railroads but it will include all public utilities. In fact, the first and only active steps its members have already taken are the investigation of government ownership of telegraph and telephone. Municipal utilities will receive immediate attention, and the great question of government ownership of the railroads in all its phases will be divided and classified, and assigned to different members for investigation and report.

The need of an organization of this kind is apparent to every thoughtful person. Already private ownership has many organizations and many organs that give great and constant publicity to the advantages of private ownership. This information is extremely partisan. It often omits so much of the truth as to give a distorted view so foreign to the real facts that it positively misleads or deceives public thought. Immense sums of money are spent in disseminating this class of literature all over the United States, and there is no organization anywhere to combat it or present the whole truth.

Foreign Success.

It has been said that the transportation question has never been decided anywhere in the world except by public ownership. It is likewise said that it is a settled question in every country of the world where public ownership prevails. It is also true that public ownership does prevail in three-fourths of the countries of the world. England and the United States are the only countries of the first rank not adopting it. These facts, together with the further fact that the railroads are constantly demanding increased rates, in spite of the enormous increase in business, government ownership to the American people as a live issue. They are careful and cautious people. They will not advance in the dark. Up to the present time, they only have glimpses of the light.

Interest is Large.

Occasionally a great railroad man like D. F. Yoakum of the Frisco admits they would save 200 million dollars a year upon their item of interest. Then they say if the government credit is so much better than the credit of private corporations why not capitalize all the railroads on this basis and save all the net earnings and still receive the same interest which, added to the interest saving, would amount to more than 600 million dollars per year in price, ownership earning this heavy toll?

Lower Tariffs.

Having once adopted the international point of view, the American people are now beginning to ask many questions. If private ownership is the only efficient method of handling transportation, why is it necessary to organize inside parasite companies to conduct the express business, the shipping car business, the oil tank car business and the refrigerator car business. In the countries of government ownership, they are not needed. If rates have been lowered all over the world by government ownership, why should they not be lowered in the United States? If government ownership has improved the condition of service all over the world, what would prevent it from doing the same under our flag? If government ownership has accelerated the development of every industry in other countries, why not here? If government ownership has increased the safety to life and limb throughout all the world, why not in this country? If government ownership has divorced the railroad business from politics in every country that has adopted it, why not in the United States?

These are some of the questions which this organization will undertake to answer. It will draw its information from every country in the world, and it will speak the truth. It will make mistakes, but it will always stand ready to correct them. It will decline to treat this as a partisan political question.

CAPTAIN DAVIDSON EXPLAINS CLOSING THE SUGAR FACTORY

Answers Communication of Good Fellowship Club Relative to Shutting Down Local Beet Concern.

At a meeting of the Good Fellowship club held late in December, a resolution was passed offering the aid of the club to Captain James Davidson, of the City of Chicago, should he decide to rescind his order to shut down the local sugar factory, of which he is owner.

P. S. Sheldon, secretary of the club, was instructed to write to Captain Davidson and direct him to rescind his order.

The letter from Captain Davidson, who lives at 1141 W. 13th St., Janesville, Wis., is as follows:

Dear Sir:—We wish to thank you for your favor of the 22d inst., particularly in regard to our continuing in business in your city. We appreciate very much what you say and the action taken by your club. The present tariff, however, coupled with the Farmers' Alliance, make it impossible to continue manufacturing sugar under such conditions.

For that reason we concluded that we would not operate the plant at Janesville until such a time as conditions improved. We feel there will be a change relative to the tariff conditions relative to sugar and while it is not the next best thing, it will surely come within a short time. We think the country is now beginning to feel the effects of the tariff legislation and it would bring no good to anybody that will suffer the most are those that are least able to bear such a burden. We have a fine plant at Janesville. It has been kept right up to the minute. No expense has ever been spared there in regard to adding the best and latest improvements and kept the factory in the best condition possible. Under any normal conditions the plant could be operated, but it would be a foolishly attempt to operate the plant under the conditions relative to the tariff that now exist and the attitude taken by the Farmers' Alliance. We intend to leave the plant just as it is until such a time as we feel that a change takes place, and the sooner of course that we can operate the property, the better it will be, but we wish to thank you for your kind words and we regret as you do, and more so, the fact that conditions are such that we have been compelled to cease operating at least for the present time.

Yours very truly, JAMES DAVIDSON.

CAPTAIN DAVIDSON EXPLAINS CLOSING THE SUGAR FACTORY

Answers Communication of Good Fellowship Club Relative to Shutting Down Local Beet Concern.

At a meeting of the Good Fellowship club held late in December, a resolution was passed offering the aid of the club to Captain James Davidson, of the City of Chicago, should he decide to rescind his order to shut down the local sugar factory, of which he is owner.

P. S. Sheldon, secretary of the club, was instructed to write to Captain Davidson and direct him to rescind his order.

The letter from Captain Davidson, who lives at 1141 W. 13th St., Janesville, Wis., is as follows:

Dear Sir:—We wish to thank you for your favor of the 22d inst., particularly in regard to our continuing in business in your city. We appreciate very much what you say and the action taken by your club. The present tariff, however, coupled with the Farmers' Alliance, make it impossible to continue manufacturing sugar under such conditions.

For that reason we concluded that we would not operate the plant at Janesville until such a time as conditions improved. We feel there will be a change relative to the tariff conditions relative to sugar and while it is not the next best thing, it will surely come within a short time. We think the country is now beginning to feel the effects of the tariff legislation and it would bring no good to anybody that will suffer the most are those that are least able to bear such a burden. We have a fine plant at Janesville. It has been kept right up to the minute. No expense has ever been spared there in regard to adding the best and latest improvements and kept the factory in the best condition possible. Under any normal conditions the plant could be operated, but it would be a foolishly attempt to operate the plant under the conditions relative to the tariff that now exist and the attitude taken by the Farmers' Alliance. We intend to leave the plant just as it is until such a time as we feel that a change takes place, and the sooner of course that we can operate the property, the better it will be, but we wish to thank you for your kind words and we regret as you do, and more so, the fact that conditions are such that we have been compelled to cease operating at least for the present time.

Yours very truly, JAMES DAVIDSON.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets Are a Harmless Substitute.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets. These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place. Most headaches, "biliousness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. At 10c and 25c per box. The Olive Tablet Company, Columbus, Ohio. All druggists.

LACK OF FRESH AIR

Causes Run Down Condition. How to Keep Strong.

Statistics prove that the death rate is very much greater in the winter months than in summer, and that the lack of fresh air is largely responsible for this condition. The system becomes rundown, blood thin and watery, circulation poor, no appetite, don't dose with drugs, but take our delicious cod liver and iron tonic Vinol, not a patent medicine, as everything in it is named on every package and if it does not give you a hearty appetite, enrich the blood and create strength, we will return your money; that shows our faith in Vinol.

A case has just come to our attention from Knoxville, Tenn. Miss Carrie King says: "For three years I was all run-down, weak, had no appetite and after all that time I am glad that Vinol has brought back my health and strength."

Sure Indications of Lung Trouble

Among the indications of threatened lung trouble are a continued cough, fever and night sweats. A change of climate often helps, but it seems that something more is needed to stop the cough and soothe the inflamed system. Beckman's Alternative, after many years' use, is known to be most beneficial in bringing about relief. In many cases complete recoveries. (This case—) Schell City, Mo. (Abbreviated; more on request.) "Gentlemen: I had a terrible cough, night sweats and pleurisy in my lungs. For several months I was unable to do my work. I tried many remedies, but nothing helped. I then tried Beckman's Alternative. I paid no attention to him then, but he kept on writing me. I began to feel better. I then went to the doctor and he told me to go to Wyoming. I did, and when I got there I steadily grew worse. Then I remembered what he had told me about your medicine. I had been well and in better health than I ever was."

Broadway Jones

The plan of the trust is to take it from the market. They have not thought of continuing it as an individual product. They merely wish to eliminate it utterly. This would free their other products of its competition.

"Did some one of them chew it?" his nephew inquired earnestly.
"Jackson, you should be ashamed! They merely wish to take it from the market so that it no longer will affect them."

"Yes, I've heard. He had a thousand times."

"That is the reason I am anxious that you should begin to show some vital interest in our splendid enterprise. It must be protected at all hazards. It should be the pride, as it has been the fortune, of the Jones family."

"Honest, uncle, I don't believe I know enough to go into the business. Aren't you afraid that it would spoil the sale of the gum if anybody should find out I helped to make it? That worries me. The gum must be protected. I leave it to you, uncle."

"Jackson, you are frivolous. You are a tremendous disappointment to me. You—"

"I don't want to be a disappointment, but I'd almost rather be a disappointment than a gum-maker. I'd—"

"Go!" said his uncle angrily. "I— But Jackson did not hear the remainder of the sentence. He had heeded its first word."

CHAPTER II.

"I should enjoy the supper better," Broadway said later at the Spotswood family table. "If everything I chew, after I've seen uncle, didn't make me think of gum. I wish there was a way of eating without chewing."

They all laughed, but not very heartily. "Gum was a sacred word to them also. It was to every one in Jonesville."

"Let's talk things over after supper," said the judge. Then, after they had gone into his study little study. "Broadway, I've been talking with your uncle."

"That's one reason I would never study law. You have to do such things."

agreeable things. I've been talking with him, too."
The judge laughed very briefly, very dryly. "It's not polite for you to speak that way, my boy. The old—or your Uncle Abner will be sure to hear of it."

"Must I pretend to love him?"
"Er—It might be better to."

"Judge," said Broadway solemnly, "I'm a pretty good little amateur actor, but there are some parts I'll never try to play. One of them is that of loving nephew to my Uncle Abner Jones."

my boy, and I don't know that I blame you. I only wished to say that as a matter of expediency—"
"I don't know just what expediency means, but if it has anything to do with Uncle Abner I don't want to."

"Well, he said today that he hadn't any hopes of you. He said he didn't think you'd ever settle down. He doesn't seem to know where you get all your wild ways from. He is shocked beyond expression to find that your young friends all call you Broadway. It's worrying your uncle."

"What will he propose?"
"If you won't go into the business, he will try to buy you out."

Jackson looked at him in dumb delight. "For money? Ready money?"

"Yes, it's what I'm afraid of, Jackson. Be careful how you sell to him."

"I'll be careful that he pays me. That's all I care about."

"Don't be in a hurry. What I'm afraid of—but I ought not to talk in this way. Abner Jones has never done me an ill turn. Of course your father was my client—"

"And dear uncle put his hooks into my dad whenever he could get them. He could pull, didn't he?"

"He is a shrewd business man. But don't sell, Jackson." The judge was clearly ill at ease.

"If I don't sell, will I have to turn to and make gum?"

"You ought to. A goose that lays a golden egg should be well cared for."

"Let uncle raise the poultry. I'd rather sell the eggs."

"But, Jackson—"
"Judge, will you come to see me in New York?"

The conversation had brought Jackson Jones to sudden realization of the fact that in eleven months or less he would be twenty-two, and that, as soon as he was twenty-two, he would be free, according to the terms of his dead father's will, to spend his own money as he pleased.

"I suppose you'll go there just as soon as you are master of your fortune."

The boy leaned forward eagerly. "When will it happen, judge? Will it be on the midnight that begins my birthday, or the midnight that it ends with? Quick! I've got to know."

"Better wait till the next day, Jackson. That's the safest. Oh, I know you'll go! But don't sell to your uncle. Promise me."

"When will he make me the offer?"
"Before your birthday, Jackson."

"Is it as close as that? Is liberty as close as that? I hadn't realized! Couldn't we get him to talk to me tonight about it? If I agreed to sell to him for half, would he agree to let my birthday come at once instead of when it's scheduled? Would—"

The judge was laughing, somewhat ruefully. Jackson Jones amused him, always; to some extent he could sympathize with his revolt against Jonesville. He himself had revolted against Jonesville in his youth, but there had been no fortune coming to him with the arrival of his manhood to release him from the hated village. And, besides, he was uncomfortable tonight. He wondered if he ought to tell Broadway what he had learned.

"Will you consider me your lawyer?" the judge asked.

"Consider you my lawyer, judge? Of course you are my lawyer. Weren't you my father's lawyer?"

"Not always. I did not draw his will, for instance. And in other things your uncle—well, if your father had but listened, as I hope you will listen, his brother Abner never would have—"

"Sure! I know. And you've already been my lawyer. Didn't you get me out of jail there in New Haven? Imagine being locked up in New Haven! And I'd only dropped a melon from the window. If the chief of police happened to be going by, was that my fault? I'd have eaten the melon if it hadn't been so spoiled. And still they locked me up! They made a criminal of me! It's bad enough to be a criminal, but to be a criminal imprisoned in New Haven—heavens! Suppose a man should be locked up in Jonesville! Why, he'd die of shame!"

"Well, if you accept me as your lawyer, when your uncle asks you to sell out your interest in the Jones Gum company you will refuse. When you do that, he'll try to bind you not to sell out to the trust as long as you both live. I hope you'll never sell out to the trust, but don't sign any papers, Jackson, although you know what the trust purchase of the factory would mean to Jonesville—and to all of us."

"I'll not sell out to the trust, judge, but if my uncle—"

"He'll not offer you a fair price. He'll want to get a bargain. And remember that the company will get richer every year."

"But the trust may bust it."

"I hope you'll take that chance, my boy, rather than ever be a party to ruining the old home town."

"All right, judge. I won't sell to Uncle Abner—anyway, just now. I won't need the money. There's enough coming to me to keep me busy for a while."

"Jackson, I wish you might feel differently about the starting of your life as a grown man. If you could cultivate a feeling of responsibility—"

"It bores me. I could never even spell it."

"I'm afraid it does, Jackson, and that worries me. But—"

"You'll come to New York, sometime, and—"

"Jackson, I'm afraid I shall."

"And keep it secret that we're either one of us from Jonesville."

"Jackson," said the judge, reprovingly, "you'd better get along toward home. And don't think too much about those lights. Broadway, like every other street, is safer in the daytime, before the lights are lit."

"The lights are Broadway's eyes," said the young man. "Until they're lit, Broadway is asleep, and you see only men and women on it."

"And what do you see later?"
"You can search me for the name. But they're several degrees beyond mere men and women."

After he had left, the judge, Jackson found it quite impossible to locate his home, as he might, possibly have done on almost any other night. He often went to bed in Jonesville, he explained upon occasion, because he could not bear to stay awake there. He said it made him feel ashamed.

"Back of Whipple's drug store was the unofficial clubroom of the gayest youth of Jonesville, who demanded something less solid than the two grim saloons or the tavern barroom. To the drug store Broadway retreated."

He found it more than usually animated. While he had been in the seclusion of Judge Spotswood's study one of the rare, dramatic episodes which Jonesville ever knew had come to pass—being imported from the outer world, of course. A touring car had taken at too high a speed a "thank ye ma'am" provided by the town authorities for the purpose of re-had left it without intention, gone upward, cleaving the night air to heights, and, coming down, had found themselves almost simultaneously in a mud-hole and a deputy's custody.

Having paid their fines for speeding and repented their somewhat battered motor, they now were being banded. It was characteristic of the general state of Jonesville's mind that the visitors had first been fined, repairs for their bruised heads being looked at as a secondary matter.

The unfortunate numbered two, and they had told the fine and exultant judge of the peace that they were son and father, giving their names as Grover and Robert Wallace. Robert Wallace was of not much more than Jackson's age.

The drug store crowd was listening with huge delight to their subdued expressions of wrath. But with Broadway's entrance the younger of the victims recognized a member of his own indefinable fraternity. Within two minutes the young men were "old chap" to each other, which is a congenial sign.

"How's your machine?" asked Broadway.

"Haven't looked it over very carefully."

"If it's out of business, I'll get my runabout and tow you ten miles down the road. There's a good hotel there, and a repair man who knows his business could help you out the first thing in the morning."

No such service proved to be necessary. In fact the stranger's car was in such unexpectedly good condition that its owners insisted upon taking Broadway with them to his gateway.

They reached it simultaneously with Clara Spotswood and Josie Richards, who were now engaged in that inefficient but delightful see-sawing which frequently occurs when a girl-friend takes a girl-friend home. Clara had walked home with Josie, Josie had walked home with Clara, Clara had gone part way back with her. They had gradually come almost to a midway standstill in front of the Jones place.

Dinner Stories

Senator Bourne said recently in Washington:

"The parcel post, limited as it is thus far, saved the American people $500,000 in its first fifteen days of operation. That isn't much—not much to what it will do later on—but every little counts."

"Every little counts in parcel postage as in New York. I know a New York man who, on his return from the roominess of Washington, said, fretfully, to his servant: 'This day seems much smaller than when I moved into it last summer.'"

"Yes, sir," Jameson answered, "quite so, sir. But you must remember, sir, that you are wearing your winter underclothing now, sir."

The following anecdote may serve to illustrate John D. Rockefeller's sense of wastefulness:

One day, chancing to go along the golf links, he saw an old attendant spilling dead leaves and scraps of sult, had been that the car's occupants paper which he put in a bag.

tarding motorists who endeavored to escape from deputy sheriffs. The result had been that the car's occupants paper which he put in a bag.
